Letter dated 23 May 2007 from the President of the International Criminal Tribunal for the Prosecution of Persons Responsible for Genocide and Other Serious Violations of International Humanitarian Law Committed in the Territory of Rwanda and Rwandan Citizens Responsible for Genocide and Other Such Violations Committed in the Territory of Neighbouring States between 1 January and 31 December 1994 addressed to the President of the Security Council

On 26 March 2004, the Security Council adopted resolution 1534 (2004), in which it requested the Tribunal to provide to the Council by 31 May 2004, and every six months thereafter, assessments by its President and Prosecutor setting out in detail the progress made towards the implementation of the completion strategy, explaining what measures had been taken to implement it and what measures remained to be taken.

After consulting with the Prosecutor, and in conformity with that resolution, I am pleased to submit to you a revised version of the completion strategy of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda, containing the assessment requested (see enclosure).

Completion strategy of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda

Summary

This document details the Completion Strategy of the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda (ICTR), based on the information available by 15 May 2007. It takes into account the deadlines set in Security Council resolutions 1503 (2003) and 1534 (2004).

Judgments have been delivered in the first instance in respect of thirty-three persons. Judgment in another single-accused case is expected soon. The hearing of evidence in one multi-accused trial, involving four accused, has concluded. Trials involving twenty-two further accused are currently in progress. Consequently, the number of persons whose trials have either been completed or are in progress is sixty. Eight detainees are awaiting trial. The Prosecutor proposes to request the transfer of a maximum of three of them to national jurisdictions.

Eighteen indicted persons are still at large. The Prosecutor intends to request the transfer of most of these persons to national jurisdictions for trial. Some of the indictees may be dead, whereas others may not be found.

The cases involving the twenty-two accused whose trials are currently in progress will be completed from 2007 onwards. Trials of the remaining accused earmarked for trial in Arusha will commence as soon as Trial Chamber and court room capacity permits. On the basis of the information presently available, it is estimated that by the end of 2008, the Tribunal would have completed trials involving sixty-five to seventy persons.

I. Introduction

1. The present document contains an up-dated and revised version of the ICTR Completion Strategy as of 15 May 2007. It takes into account Security Council resolutions 1503 (2003) and 1534 (2004), adopted on 28 August 2003 and 26 March 2004, respectively. The document has been progressively elaborated based on contributions from the President, the Prosecutor, and the Registrar. The basis for the consultations between these three organs was originally a document entitled "Completion Strategy of the Office of the Prosecutor", which contained developments as of 29 April 2003.¹ The present document, which is the ninth report on the

¹ A first version of the ICTR Completion Strategy was submitted to United Nations Headquarters on 14 July 2003. That document was prepared within the context of General Assembly resolution 57/289 (2003), para. 15 (a), which provided that the proposed budget of the ICTR for 2004-2005 should include "detailed information as to how the resources requested for the biennium would support the development of a sound and realistic completion strategy". A second version of the ICTR Completion Strategy was submitted to United Nations Headquarters on 29 September 2003 and formed the basis of the ICTR request to increase the number of ad litem judges sitting "at any one time" from four to nine. The third to eighth versions of the Completion Strategy were submitted to the President of the Security Council on 30 April 2004, 19 November 2004, 23 May 2005, 30 November 2005, 29 May 2006 and 8 December 2006, respectively.

Completion Strategy, is based on revised information provided by the Prosecutor and recent developments in 2007.²

2. It is recalled that the first accused was transferred to Arusha in May 1996. Since the first trial started in January 1997, the ICTR has handed down twenty-seven judgments involving thirty-three accused. Of these, twenty-eight persons were convicted and five acquitted. Six of these convicted persons whose judgments are final are presently serving their sentences in Mali. The total output of the second mandate (1999-2003) amounts to nine judgments involving fourteen accused, which is double the number of accused that were tried in the first mandate (1995-1999). So far in the third mandate (2003-2007), the Tribunal has commenced twenty-one cases involving twenty-nine accused and delivered twelve judgments involving twelve accused, whereas the thirteenth judgment (one accused) will be delivered soon. One multi-accused case (four accused) which commenced in the second mandate has been completed. The above information is reflected in the table contained in Annex I.

3. In addition to the thirty-three persons whose cases have been completed in the first instance and the two cases (involving a total of five persons) at the judgment writing stage, twenty-two accused are involved in nine trials. Four of these trials are multi-accused cases and very voluminous: the Butare case (six accused), the Government case (four accused), the Military II case (four accused) and the Karemera et al. case (three accused). There are five single-accused trials: Zigiranyirazo (commencement on 3 October 2005), Bikindi (18 September 2006), Nchamihigo (25 September 2006), Rukundo (15 November 2006) and Renzaho (8 January 2007). Consequently, the total number of accused whose trials have been completed or are in progress is sixty. A further single-accused trial is scheduled to commence in June 2007. Details are given below (II).

4. Eight detainees are awaiting the commencement of their trials. The Prosecutor intends to request the transfer of a maximum of three persons to national jurisdictions for trial. The remaining detainees will have their cases heard when the Tribunal's capacity so allows (III and para. 29).

5. There are eighteen indicted persons at large. The Prosecutor intends to request the transfer of the cases of most of these persons to national jurisdictions for trial (V and VI).

6. Some of the accused at large may be dead, whereas others may not be arrested. Consequently, the actual number of persons brought to trial before the ICTR may be less than the number projected above. As part of the Completion Strategy, the Prosecutor has formulated a more aggressive programme for the tracking and apprehension of fugitives. The Tracking Team Section within the Investigation Division has been re-organised and strengthened. The Prosecutor has also visited a number of Member States of the United Nations with a view to securing their political support and cooperation for the arrest and transfer of fugitives.

² Following his first address to the Security Council in October 2003, the new ICTR Prosecutor, Mr. Hassan B. Jallow, reviewed all the cases that were not currently on trial, with a view to determining which cases could reasonably be completed within the time frame set by the Security Council in Resolution 1503. The document dated 28 February 2004, entitled "Completion Strategy of the Office of the Prosecutor", was the result of this review.

7. The Prosecutor considers that approximately forty suspects could be tried in national jurisdictions. He is currently engaged in discussions with some States for this purpose and has already transferred thirty case files to Rwanda and one case file to Belgium.

8. Security Council resolution 1503 (2003) provides that all work of the ICTR and the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia (ICTY) shall be completed by 2010. It is difficult at this stage to indicate a precise completion strategy for the ICTR Appeals Chamber, which is linked to the ICTY completion strategy. It is recalled, however, that most judgments rendered to date have been appealed. In addition to a number of review decisions, the Appeals Chamber rendered judgement in one further appeal (Ndindabahizi) on 16 January 2007. There are five judgments, involving seven persons, currently on appeal (the Media case, Muhimana, Simba, Muvunyi and Seromba), with judgement in the Muhimana case scheduled for 21 May 2007. It is anticipated that the Appeals Chamber's already heavy workload will, in all likelihood, continue to increase. It has been observed from past experience that appeals are normally lodged by both (in multi-accused cases all) parties. Therefore, the real number of appeals is much higher than the number of judgments on appeal. As the workload of the Trial Chambers decreases, the focus will shift to the Appeals Chamber where a drastic increase in work is anticipated. This increase is further compounded by the fact that the Judges of the Appeals Chamber also consider ICTY appeals. There will, at some stage, be a need to increase the number of judges at the Appeals Chamber if there are to be any reasonable prospects of completing all appeals by 2010. This will require an amendment of the Statute.

9. On 13 June 2006, the Security Council adopted Resolution 1684, which extended the term of office of all ICTR permanent judges until 31 December 2008. On 13 October 2006, Resolution 1717 extended the terms of office of all ICTR ad litem judges until the same date. This provides the Tribunal with the continuity, stability and certainty necessary for the efficient and effective planning of trials.

II. Activities in Chambers

10. On 3 December 2003, Trial Chamber I delivered judgment in the "Media case", which was heard during the second mandate. It has also been hearing the continuation of the Military I case (Bagosora, Kabiligi, Ntabakuze and Nsengiyumva), transferred from the previous Trial Chamber III. The Prosecution closed its case in September 2004 after having called eighty-two witnesses. The Defence case started in April 2005 and concluded on 19 January 2007. The Military I trial has been twin-tracked with the Ndindabahizi trial (from 1 September 2003), in which judgment was delivered on 15 July 2004; the Simba trial (from 30 August 2004), where judgment was delivered on 13 December 2005; the Mpambara trial (from 19 September 2005), in which judgment was delivered on 12 September 2006; the Karera trial (from 9 January 2006), in which judgment is expected soon, and the Renzaho trial (from 8 January 2007).³ Judgment was also rendered in the Serugendo case (guilty plea) on 12 June 2006.

³ "Twin-tracking" means that two trials are heard in consecutive slots, and is illustrated as follows: Trial A five weeks, trial B five weeks, trial A five weeks, etc. Defence counsel in trial A will leave Arusha while trial B is heard. The purpose of this system is to use inevitable breaks during one trial to ensure progress of another case. Such breaks allow the Prosecution and the Defence to prepare for the next stage of the proceedings (for instance by interviewing witnesses etc.).

11. Trial Chamber II was engaged in three trials concurrently during the second mandate. Judgment in the Kajelijeli trial was rendered on 1 December 2003. The Kamuhanda trial concluded with judgment on 22 January 2004. Particularly voluminous is the Butare trial. It involves six accused, which is the largest number of accused jointly tried (Nyiramasuhuko, Ntahobali, Nsabimana, Nteziryayo, Kanyabashi and Ndayambaje).⁴ In the third mandate, Trial Chamber II has given priority to the completion of the Butare trial. The Prosecution closed its case after having called fifty-nine witnesses and the Defence commenced its case on 31 January 2005. On 5 November 2003, the Trial Chamber started the trial in the Government case, involving four government ministers (Bizimungu, Mugenzi, Bicamumpaka and Mugiraneza). The Defence case, which commenced on 1 November 2005, is currently being presented. On 20 September 2004, the Military II trial started. The Prosecution closed its case on 7 December 2006 and the defence case, which commenced on 16 April 2007, is ongoing. Judgment was delivered in the Muvunyi trial, which commenced on 28 February 2005, on 12 September 2006. Two judgements were also rendered following guilty pleas: on 13 April 2006 in the Bisengimana case and on 23 February 2007 in the Nzabirinda case. The Rukundo trial commenced on 15 November 2006 and the Prosecution case has concluded.

12. Trial Chamber III heard three trials contemporaneously during the second mandate: the Semanza case (one accused; judgment on 16 May 2003), the Cyangugu trial with three accused (Ntagerura, Bagambiki and Imanishimwe; judgment on 25 February 2004), and the Military I trial. Following the reconstitution of the Chambers in early June 2003, this case was transferred to Trial Chamber I (para. 10). In the third mandate, Trial Chamber III conducted the Gacumbitsi trial (from July 2003), in which judgment was delivered on 17 June 2004, and the Muhimana trial (from March 2004), where judgment was delivered on 28 April 2005. The Karemera et al. case commenced on 27 November 2003. Following the Appeals Chamber's decision of 28 September 2004 and its reasons of 22 October 2004, the trial had to commence de novo. One of the accused, André Rwamakuba was subsequently severed from this case, and his trial commenced on 9 June 2005, which led to judgment on 20 September 2006. The Karemera et al. trial, with the remaining three accused, commenced on 19 September 2005 before a different Trial Chamber Section in Trial Chamber III. The Prosecution is presenting its evidence. In the Seromba trial, which started on 20 September 2004, judgment was rendered on 13 December 2006. The Zigiranyirazo trial commenced on 3 October 2005. The Prosecution closed its case in late June 2006. The Defence case is expected to conclude in 2007. On 14 March 2005, Trial Chamber III rendered judgment in the Rutaganira case (guilty plea). One Trial Chamber Section commenced the Bikindi trial on 18 September 2006. Another Section started the Nchamihigo case on 25 September 2006. The Prosecution cases in both trials have concluded.

13. The eighteen single-accused cases that have commenced in the third mandate led to two judgments in 2004 (Gacumbitsi, Ndindabahizi), three judgments in 2005 (Rutaganira, who pleaded guilty; Muhimana and Simba), six judgments in 2006 (Bisengimana and Serugendo, who both pleaded guilty; Muvunyi, Mpambara, Rwamakuba and Seromba) and one judgment to date in 2007 (Nzabirinda, who pleaded guilty). One further judgment is expected soon. An overview of on-going trials is presented in Annex 2.

III. Remaining Detainees

14. Eight detainees are awaiting the commencement of their respective trials. These cases are all single-accused trials, some of which will commence in 2007, depending on Trial Chamber and courtroom capacity. These detainees are identified in Annex 3.

15. All of the remaining indicted persons may not be tried by the ICTR. In determining which individuals should be tried before the ICTR, the Prosecutor will be guided by the need to focus on those who are alleged to have been in positions of leadership and those who allegedly bear the greatest responsibility for the genocide. This approach is in conformity with Security Council resolution 1534 (2004). The criteria to be taken into consideration when making this determination are as follows:

- the alleged status and extent of participation of the individual during the genocide;
- the alleged connection an individual may have with other cases;
- the need to cover the major geographical areas of Rwanda in which the crimes were allegedly committed;
- the availability of evidence with regard to the individual concerned;
- the concrete possibility of arresting the individual concerned;
- the availability of investigative material for transmission to a State for national prosecution.

16. On the basis of these criteria, the Prosecutor intends to transfer the cases of a maximum of three of the present detainees to national jurisdictions for trial.⁵ It will be for the Trial Chambers to decide on the requests for transfer. The first decision on transfer was made on 13 April 2007, when a Trial Chamber decided on the request of the Prosecutor to transfer the case of Michel Bagaragaza to The Netherlands (para. 37).

IV. Remaining Workload Relating to the Detainees

A. General Observations

17. The analysis provided above (II-III) indicates that, in addition to the judgments involving thirty-three persons, the ICTR will deliver judgments in at least fourteen cases in respect of at least thirty persons from 2007 onwards (one single-accused and one multi-accused case at the judgment writing stage; twenty-two accused currently on trial and at least three detainees).⁶

⁵ As discussions with States are on-going, it is not possible to identify the cases involving detainees that may be transferred to national jurisdictions.

⁶ The fourteen cases involving thirty accused are Butare (6), Military I (4), Government (4), Military II (4), Karemera et al. (3), Ziguranyirazo (1), Karera (1), Bikindi (1), Nchamihigo (1), Rukundo (1) and Renzaho (1) plus at least three detainees.

Consequently, there is a need to estimate the time required to complete the trials of these persons.

18. In the first seven versions of the Completion Strategy, calculations and projections were premised on a sixty-two trial day average per accused. The computation of sixty-two trials per accused was an estimate.⁷ For ease of reference, the table that formed the basis for the estimate of sixty-two trial days per accused is annexed to this document (Annex 4). In the present document, with about nineteen months left until the end of December 2008, less emphasis is placed on calculations, and more upon an assessment of the time required based on specific and up-dated knowledge of the scope and nature of the remaining cases. This method was also used in the eight version of the Completion Strategy (November 2006).

19. Estimating the time needed to complete the trials has its difficulties. It is recalled, firstly, that the estimates in previous Completion Strategy reports were based on the number of witnesses and hours needed to present the Prosecution case, cross-examination and the Defence case. Since then, there has been considerable progress in many trials.

20. Secondly, the length of Defence cross-examination depends on factors relating to each individual case. Experience shows that in cases involving one accused, the cross-examination of Prosecution witnesses will generally take about the same amount of time as the examination-in-chief. In some instances, it may even be shorter. In multi-accused trials, the time taken for cross-examination often exceeds the time taken in examination-in-chief, particularly if the witness gives evidence implicating more than one or all the accused. It is assumed, as a working tool, that the total time taken for the cross-examination of a Prosecution witness will normally not exceed the total time taken for the examination-in-chief of that witness, when all cases are considered as a whole. In this context, it is taken into account that the Prosecution's list of witnesses has usually been reduced during trial.

21. Finally, it is recalled that information about Defence cases is difficult to obtain, particularly since some of these cases have not yet started and there is the issue of confidentiality when it comes to the trial strategy of the Defence. As a working tool, it is assumed that the time needed for the presentation of the Defence case should not exceed the time required for the presentation of the Prosecution case. Experience shows that it may sometimes take less time.

22. Factors which influence trial time include the number of counts in the indictments and the seriousness of the allegations; the alleged positions and roles of the accused and whether they are alleged to have acted alone or in concert with others, which may determine whether they are tried separately or jointly; and the nature, scope and length of the testimonies.

B. Trials in Progress

23. The on-going trials are at different stages of completion. The Tribunal's main challenge is the completion of the four remaining multi-accused cases. In the Butare trial (para. 11), the fourth of the six accused is nearing the conclusion of his case. The trial is expected to be completed in 2007.

24. In the Military I trial (para. 10), the Defence case closed in January 2007 and closing arguments are scheduled from 28 May to 1 June 2007.

25. In the Government trial (para. 11), the second of the four Defence cases is nearing its conclusion. It is expected that the case will be completed in late 2007. Judgment is expected in 2008.

26. The Prosecution case in Military II closed in early December 2006 (para. 11). The Defence case commenced on 16 April 2007 and judgment is expected in 2008.

27. The Karemera et al. trial (para. 12) is a particularly complex case. Following the withdrawal of a judge from this trial for health reasons in January 2007, proceedings were stayed pending the conclusion of proceedings to determine whether this case could continue with a substitute judge. Following the Appeals Chamber ruling on 20 April 2007 and the appointment of a substitute judge to this case on 1 May 2007, the Karemera trial is set to resume on 11 June 2007. The Trial Chamber has taken steps to ensure that the Prosecution case should be completed before the end of 2007. It is hoped to conclude the trial in late 2008, although the possibility that this case, particularly in the judgment writing phase, may spill over into early 2009 cannot be excluded.

28. Turning now to the single accused cases, the Prosecution case in Zigiranyirazo (para. 12) has concluded and the Defence case is ongoing. This trial is expected to conclude in 2007. The hearing of the Defence cases in the Bikindi trial (para. 12), the Nchamihigo case (para. 12) and the Rukundo trial (para. 11) are also expected to be completed in 2007.

C. Detainees Awaiting Trial

29. There are eight detainees in Arusha whose trials have not commenced. The Prosecutor intends to transfer a maximum of three of them to national jurisdictions for trial (paras. 14-16). Trial of the remaining detainees will commence as soon as Trial Chamber and courtroom capacity allows. One of them, the Nsengimana case, will commence in June. The completion of the Military I, the Butare and the Government trials between 2007 and early 2008 (paras. 23-25) will gradually allow the judges presently hearing these multi-accused cases to conduct the remaining single-accused trials.

V. Workload Relating to Persons at Large and New Indictments

30. There are currently eighteen accused at large, most of whom the Prosecutor intends to request to transfer to national jurisdictions for trial.

31. The Completion Strategy of September 2003 indicated that twenty-six suspects were at large. As the Prosecutor's strategy is to prosecute, before the ICTR, those persons bearing the greatest responsibility for the crimes committed in Rwanda in 1994 (paras. 14-16), the number of suspects under investigation was reduced to sixteen in the Completion Strategy submission of April 2004.⁸ Following the completion of investigations in respect of the genocide, the files involving eight of these persons were closed due to lack of evidence. Eight indictments against the remaining eight suspects were confirmed in 2005. Five of these persons remain at large and are included in the eighteen fugitives mentioned above. The Prosecutor has also taken account of the mandate of the ICTR, as emphasized by Resolution 1503, to investigate reports of violations by the Rwanda Patriotic Front (RPF).

32. All investigations in respect of the genocide were completed by 2004, as requested by Resolution 1503 (2003). Moreover, when the eight indictments were submitted for confirmation in 2005, the Prosecutor ensured that these cases were ready for trial, in the sense that all approved identified investigations are completed, a draft pre-trial brief is prepared, together with draft exhibits and witness lists, and that disclosure searches (as of that date) are completed. This will ensure that (i) there will be no delay in trial preparations when the accused is transferred to the Tribunal; (ii) the case can be more readily assigned to a new Prosecution team if necessary; or (iii) referred to a national jurisdiction pursuant to Rule 11 bis of the Rules.

33. Once an individual is indicted, substantial investigations must be continued in order to support the trial team. Additional investigations may be needed to replace the evidence of witnesses who may have died, to assist in the interviewing of witnesses prior to their travel to Arusha, to supplement and corroborate the evidence, and to address the Defence case and any possible rebuttal. The Office of the Prosecutor's investigations section continues to provide support in respect of ongoing trials and appeals. There will now be a shift in emphasis from classical investigations to trial and appeals support.

34. Some of the indictees at large are particularly high-level accused or alleged to have committed crimes that should be dealt with at the international level. One illustrating example, mentioned in Security Council resolution 1534 (2003), is Felicien Kabuga, who is hiding in East Africa. In spite of intensive efforts by the ICTR as well as international pressure, he remains at large. It would affect the legacy of the ICTR and create an impression of impunity if such persons were not brought to trial in order to decide their guilt or innocence. Should they be arrested too late for their trials to be completed by 31 December 2008, or apprehended after that date, a solution should be found to ensure that they are tried.

VI. Transfer of Cases by the Prosecutor to National Jurisdictions

35. The Completion Strategy of September 2003 indicated that about forty cases were earmarked for transfer to national jurisdictions. According to the April 2004 Completion Strategy, the Prosecutor increased the number of these cases to forty-one. He is currently engaged in discussions with some States for this purpose. His intention is to transfer, in some cases, files in respect of which investigations have been completed and are trial ready and, in other cases, dossiers requiring further investigations by the receiving country. The decision to transfer cases to national jurisdictions is a judicial one in cases where indictments exist. In addition, the Prosecutor envisages the transfer of files involving thirty-two suspects to national jurisdictions for trial. This process is under way. Case files in respect of thirty individuals have already been transferred to Rwanda and in respect of one suspect to Belgium.

36. In preliminary discussions with national authorities, the Office of the Prosecutor has ascertained that the laws of the State in which some suspects are present may not confer jurisdiction over these suspects or the crimes they allegedly committed. Others have investigated the cases and not pursued them, and may be reluctant to re-open these cases. Many of the suspects are in less-developed countries where judicial systems are under strain arising from the prosecution of their own accused. The Prosecutor believes that it is important to explore the possibility of transferring cases to African countries where certain suspects are now living, despite the above constraints.

37. To date, one transfer has taken place pursuant to Rule 11 bis. The Prosecution request to transfer the case against Michael Bagaragaza to Norway was rejected by the Trial Chamber on 19 May 2006. This decision was upheld by the Appeals Chamber on 30 August 2006. Following the identification of another State willing to receive this case, a fresh request for transfer of this case for trial in a national jurisdiction was lodged in December 2006. On 13 April 2007, the Chamber approved the referral of the Bagaragaza case for trial in The Netherlands.

38. Transfer of cases to Rwanda raises several issues. One involves the death penalty, which is applicable in genocide cases, though only rarely implemented. A welcome development since the previous Completion Strategy report is that Rwanda has promulgated a law which, among other things, excludes the application of the death penalty to cases referred from the ICTR or from States. The ICTR is presently considering the issue of the capacity of the Rwandan judicial system to handle such cases at a time when it faces difficulties in coping with thousands of local cases connected with the genocide. Since many of the cases earmarked for transfer are destined for Rwanda, the issue of resources may therefore affect the proposed transfer of cases to Rwanda. The Tribunal is conducting programmes to contribute to capacity building in Rwanda (Annex 5).

39. The Prosecutor will initiate discussions with States regarding transfer of cases and transmissions of files. He will insist on compliance with international standards of fair trial on the files transmitted. In the event that it is not possible to transfer or transmit these cases to national jurisdictions, he will make alternate proposals to the Security Council and highlight the related budgetary implications.

VII. Past and Present Strategies

40. Pre-trial Stage: At the commencement of the second mandate, in June 1999, there was a considerable number of pending pre-trial motions. The Prosecutor at that time requested the joining of a large number of accused in one case, at one point asking for the confirmation of a joint indictment for over twenty suspects. The Confirming Judge denied the request. The Prosecutor then asked for joinder of smaller numbers of accused, who allegedly participated in the same criminal transaction, such as the use of public media, the actions of military officials, government officials, or alleged crimes in certain geographical areas of Rwanda (Butare, Cyangugu). This led to a considerable number of motions from the Prosecution requesting amendments of indictments and the joinder of accused. In addition, a large number of motions were filed by the Defence.

41. Consequently, the first priority for the Chambers in 1999 was to reduce the number of motions in order to move cases to the trial stage. To facilitate this, the judges amended the Rules in order to allow for motions to be considered solely on written pleadings and also by a single judge. These measures taken to reduce the workload of outstanding motions increased the efficiency of the Chambers and reduced costs in connection with oral hearings of motions. After having reduced the number of pending motions to a minimum, full translation and disclosure of documents was ordered before all three Trial Chambers could commence with trial.

42. Additionally, changes to the Rules were adopted by the judges in the Plenary to regulate the pre-trial process and to restrict the number of interlocutory appeals that were delaying the commencement of trials. Through pre-trial and pre-defence status conferences, a Trial Chamber has the authority to streamline trial proceedings. In particular, the parties may be ordered to file briefs addressing the factual and legal issues, identifying contested matters, and provide a list of witnesses intended to be called, along with a summary of the facts and the specific allegations in the indictment on which the witnesses will testify. Moreover, the parties must give an estimate of the time that will be taken by each witness to give their evidence, and the Trial Chamber may order a reduction in the number of witnesses and the time for witnesses to give evidence-in-chief. The Trial Chamber may also order information on the status of exhibits (Rules 73 bis and ter).

43. A useful step was the establishment of the Trial Committee in 2003, which is composed of representatives of Chambers, the Registry and the Prosecution. The Committee, which is in contact with the various Defence teams, has facilitated the trial-readiness of several new cases. A Translation Working Group has studied ways to speed up translation of documents and thus avoid delays in the judicial proceedings.

44. Guilty pleas reduce the length of trials. Experience shows that not more than a day is needed for a Chamber to satisfy itself that a guilty plea is informed, unequivocal, and made freely and voluntarily. The writing of the judgment requires limited time. Unlike the situation at the ICTY, few accused have pleaded guilty at the ICTR.⁹ It is difficult at this stage to estimate how many indictees may in future plead guilty. At the Plenary Session in May 2003, the Rules were amended, providing a legal basis for plea-agreements.

45. The Trial Stage: All Trial Chambers have been conducting trials on a twin-track basis (in some instances also on a “triple-track” basis). Twin-tracking of two big cases or more is cumbersome. Experience shows that the best model is to twin-track one big and one small case, unless the big case is particularly voluminous and complex. When required, the ICTR is using the so-called “shift system”, which ensures that one court room is used for two cases heard in morning and afternoon sessions. The shift system operates in a morning shift from 8.45 to about 13.00 and an afternoon shift until about 18.30.

46. Following the ICTR's request of 9 July 2001, the Security Council adopted Resolution 1431 of 8 August 2002, created a pool of eighteen ad litem judges. The purpose of this reform, which followed a similar Security Council resolution for the ICTY in 2000, was to increase the judicial capacity of the ICTR. The election of the eighteen ad litem judges by the General Assembly took place on 25 June 2003. The first ad litem judge took office on 1 September 2003 and three other ad litem judges arrived in October 2003. Pursuant to two other requests on 8 September 2003 and 29 September 2003, respectively, the Security Council on 27 October 2003 adopted Resolution 1512, which increased, from four to nine, the number of ad litem judges who could take office at any one time. The Security Council also conferred on ad litem judges the competence to adjudicate over pre-trial matters. The fifth judge arrived in March 2004. The arrival of the five ad litem judges made it possible to start four new trials and to continue the Butare trial. After the arrival of the remaining four ad litem judges in September 2004, it was possible to commence another two trials.¹⁰

47. With nine ad litem judges, the Tribunal is able to set up six Trial Chamber Sections. However, it follows from the ICTR Statute that a Trial Chamber Section must be comprised of both permanent and ad litem judges. Hence, the full utilisation of ad litem judges depends on the availability of permanent judges. At present, several permanent judges are engaged in voluminous trials.¹¹ This makes it difficult to maintain six Trial Chamber Sections on a permanent basis. However, experience shows the usefulness of twin-tracking one joint trial with a single-accused trial, as well as the Trial Chamber Sections sitting in shifts. Therefore, the number of Trial Chamber Sections is about six, even if they are not all sitting on a permanent basis.¹²

48. It is important to find the right balance between the multi-accused and single-accused trials. Some Trial Chamber Sections sit in morning and afternoon shifts. These sessions are shorter than full trial days, by about two hours. In the November 2004 version of the Completion Strategy, it was mentioned that the construction of a fourth courtroom would allow for more full trial days, thus increasing the progress of the multi-accused trials, as well as courtroom capacity when appeals are heard. Following voluntary contributions by the Norwegian and United Kingdom Governments, a new courtroom was constructed in record time and inaugurated on 1 March 2005. It is in full use and represents a very important element of the Tribunal's Completion Strategy.

49. In spite of all measures taken to accelerate the proceedings, cases may still appear to be time-consuming. It should be remembered that conducting judicial proceedings at the international level is a more complicated task than at the national level. The cases at the ad hoc Tribunals are legally and factually very complex. There is a considerable volume of documents normally disclosed during trials of alleged architects of the atrocities, including alleged high-ranking members of the government. These documents must be translated for legal teams and accused, who may require translations of all the documents into the other official language of the Tribunal before they respond to motions or undertake trial preparation. The number of witnesses is often considerable, and simultaneous interpretation of all testimony is required into three languages. Witnesses have often to be extracted from difficult environments, afforded considerable protection before and after testimony and sometimes re-located. The staff and counsel involved in cases come from different cultures and traditions, and effective communication requires new skills and extra effort. Prosecution and Defence counsel come from all over the world, and have different court-room styles. Defence counsel are away from their respective practices and are unable to attend to their other work for considerable periods of time when taking up assignments at the ICTR.

¹⁰ From September 2003 to the end of April 2004, ad litem judges participated in the following four new trials: Ndindabahizi, Government, Karemera et al. and Muhimana. After September 2004, ad litem judges also sat in these trials: Seromba, Military II, Rwamakuba, Muvunyi, Mpambara, Zigiranyirazo, Karera, Bikindi, Nchamihigo and Rukondo.

¹¹ Two permanent judges sit in the Butare trial and three in the Military I trial.

50. Factors which contributed to a reduction in the number of trial days included the difficulty to obtain the appearance of witnesses from Rwanda and illness on the part of judges and counsel. The ICTR has taken several steps to ensure that such factors are minimized in the future. In particular, the Rules have been amended to allow for a Trial Chamber to continue the trial in the eventuality of a judge being ill, absent or permanently unavailable (Rule 15 bis).¹³ The insistence by the Trial Chambers on having two Defence counsel and, in the event of illness or absence of one counsel, requiring the remaining counsel to continue, will reduce the occurrence of interruptions of trials. At present, witnesses from Rwanda are appearing before the ICTR. It is important that this situation continues.

51. Experience shows that it is difficult to ensure that witnesses are always available, even with the use of additional witnesses present in Arusha in case of unavailability. A frequent situation in practice is that Prosecution or Defence counsel requires additional time to prepare witnesses for examination-in-chief. The Chambers also have to allow Prosecution and Defence additional time for the preparation of cross-examination in situations where unexpected evidence emerges or evidence is tendered without proper notice. Sufficient time is needed for pre-trial hearings, deliberation on motions and judgment writing. These circumstances, combined with illness and other forms of unavailability of witnesses, not only reduce the number of trial days but also the number of sitting hours per trial day. Nevertheless, the Chambers will continue their efforts to increase the time spent in the court room.

52. Administrative Matters: In assessing its needs for human resources with a view to promoting the implementation of its Completion Strategy, the Prosecutor envisages a substantial increase in the number of trial attorneys and an expansion of its Appeals Section. Investigative and administrative support is also needed. This increase will be addressed by redeployment. The Prosecutor expects that at the anticipated conclusion of investigations, some posts presently held by investigators could be re-deployed to increase the number of trial attorneys, legal advisors and other staff required for trial. Improvements in the management of information and evidence, as well as the promotion of the best prosecutorial practices, are important initiatives towards achieving the Completion Strategy (Annex 6).

53. With the shift in emphasis of the ICTR from one centred on investigation and arrests to one centred on trials, the Registry will focus its attention on the end-date for the Tribunal in all aspects of its work. Numerous measures have been adopted to provide greater support in the management of trials. Finally, contracts entered into, item of equipment purchased and personnel recruited will all bear a close relationship to the Completion Strategy.

54. Sufficient Resources: In order to respect the time-frames laid down by Security Council resolutions 1503 and 1534, the ICTR must continue to receive the necessary resources. In 2004, the United Nations administration imposed a freeze on the recruitment of new staff at the Tribunal, due to delays in the payment of contributions to the ad hoc Tribunals by Member States. This threatened to have significant effect on the Completion Strategy. The lifting of the freeze at the beginning of 2005 improved the situation.

IX. Conclusions

55. As mentioned above (para. 3), there are currently twenty-two accused involved in nine trials (Butare, the Government case, Military II, Karemera et al., Zigiranyirazo, Bikindi, Nchamihigo, Rukundo and Renzaho), four of which are lengthy because they are joint trials. These trials are at different stages.

56. In the Completion Strategy of April 2004, it was projected that in 2004, three trials (Gacumbitsi, Nindabahizi and Muhimana) would be completed. This target was accomplished. It was also stated that three trials involving six accused (Simba, Seromba and Military II) would commence between May to September 2004. This projection was also accomplished.

57. The Completion Strategy of May 2005 indicated that, besides the judgments in the Rutaganira and Muhimana cases which were delivered in March and April 2005, respectively, judgments in the Simba and Seromba cases would be delivered later that year. Judgment in the Simba case was delivered on 13 December 2005. Difficulties arising from the withdrawal of the Lead Counsel in the Seromba case delayed the completion of trial, but judgment will be rendered on 13 December 2006. In the course of 2006, judgment was also delivered in five other cases (Bisengimana, Serugendo, Mpambara, Muvunyi and Rwamakuba).

58. The projection to start two new trials in the second half of 2005 was also accomplished. Trials in the Mpambara and Zigiranyiranzo cases commenced in September 2005 and October 2005, respectively, with judgment being rendered in the former on 12 September 2006.

59. Judgement in the Military I case will be rendered in 2007 or early 2008. The presentation of the evidence is expected to be completed in the Butare case in 2007, the Government case in late 2007, the Military II trial in 2008 and Karemera et al. trial in late 2008 or early 2009. As the current multi-accused cases conclude, an increasing number of new single-accused cases will be able to commence, subject to courtroom capacity. The Nsengimana trial will commence in June 2007, and there is information to suggest that the listing of a further case may be possible in the near future. The remaining projected new single-accused cases are likely to be conducted in the course of 2008.

60. The above projections suggest that, by the end of 2008, the ICTR could complete trials and judgments in the range of sixty-five to seventy persons, depending on the progress of present and future trials. This is an estimate, and it also depends on sufficient resources being made available. The Tribunal is committed to bringing to justice those persons who were most responsible for genocide and violations of international humanitarian law that were committed in Rwanda in 1994. In this process, the ICTR will establish the guilt or innocence of the accused, bring justice to victims of the massive crimes that were committed and establish a record of facts that can aid reconciliation in Rwanda. The Tribunal will also leave a legacy of international jurisprudence that can guide future courts and deter the future commission of these grave crimes.

61. As mentioned above (para. 1), the present document is part of the ICTR's continuing process of refining its Completion Strategy. The Tribunal welcomes contributions to this process.

ICTR OUTREACH PROGRAMME

I. Introduction

In order for the prosecution of the persons responsible for the 1994 genocide to contribute to national reconciliation in Rwanda it is essential that the Rwandan people have an understanding of and confidence in the work of the Tribunal. To achieve this, the International Criminal Tribunal for Rwanda (ICTR) has established an outreach programme designed to reach, first and foremost, all sectors of Rwanda society and, second the rest of the world.

The outreach programme has been conceived as a series of projects, complementary to the public information activities of the ICTR and cuts across all the ICTR's departments. By virtue of the Tribunal's mandate the Rwandan population, including both those within Rwanda and the Diaspora, is the most important target audience for information about the Tribunal and its work. The Statute of the Tribunal also stipulates that the prosecutions will "contribute to the process of national reconciliation" and that there is a "need for international cooperation to strengthen the courts and judicial system of Rwanda". Member States are invited to provide sufficient resources to the sustainable implementation of the ICTR Outreach Programme in Rwanda.

It is important to recognize that such an ambitious programme is by necessity multi-faceted since the targeted audiences range from uneducated persons with little or no access to modern forms of media to academics and legal practitioners throughout Rwanda. It is equally important to recognize that the ICTR outreach programme strives to provide much more than simply an awareness of the work of the Tribunal. Specifically, the outreach programme includes in-depth specialized training of Rwandan legal practitioners in the international justice process. It also supports many young professionals from Africa and other Third World countries who are interested in human rights and eager to acquire first hand experience at the ICTR.

This report summarizes the outreach activities that the Tribunal implemented until May 2006. The overarching goals of raising awareness and capacity building are interwoven throughout the following components of the outreach project.

II. Awareness-raising Programs within Rwanda

In 2000, the ICTR inaugurated an information centre in Kigali. The centre remains the flagship for all outreach activities in Rwanda. Press conferences, briefings and films on the Tribunal are frequently held at the Centre. On average, 80 persons a day have visited the Centre in order to use its legal library, internet facilities and the database of printed and audio-visual Tribunal material. Screenings of audio-visual documentaries on the Tribunal are held in various communes in Rwanda and in schools and prisons five days a month.

In order to get the Tribunal's message across Rwanda, the External Relations and Strategic Planning Section of the Tribunal conducts regular awareness-raising workshops in all Rwandan provinces. The purpose of the workshops is to explain the Tribunal's work and its relevance to Rwandans. During the workshops, ICTR staff members provide local population with first hand information about the work of the Tribunal, how trials are conducted, why trials are time-consuming, what is done to speed up the trials and why the deadlines of 2008 and 2010 were set out. During the workshops particular attention is given to the audiences' feedback. In this regard, the ICTR and the Centre for Conflict Management of the University of Rwanda are currently conducting a survey to gauge the perception of the Tribunal's work among the Rwandan population. The survey will also serve as a baseline to assess the impact of the outreach programme.

The Tribunal received funds from the European Commission. It expects that the funds will help to set up new information centres at provincial level once negotiations between the Government of Rwanda and the Tribunal are concluded. These centres will complement information activities carried out by the ICTR information centre based in Kigali, which can only receive people who are in, or able to travel to, Kigali. The purpose of these provincial information centres is to provide local populations with accurate information about the trial proceedings. They will also show documentaries about the trials in order to show ordinary Rwandans that the planners of the genocide are being tried, sentenced and punished by the Tribunal. It is expected that this information will help break the "myth of authority" among the Rwandan people and consequently, they will no longer follow orders blindly if they are able to see the genocide leaders being convicted and their ideology refuted by the international legal community.

The Tribunal is exploring technicalities of extending the video signals from the courtrooms during live broadcasts -as in the case of judgments- so that Rwandans could watch live the proceedings from the Information Centre. This will be via a radio link to be installed between the ICTR office in Kigali and the Centre. Currently such programmes are recorded by ICTR office in Kigali and broadcast by the Rwandan public media at their convenient time.

III. Training of Jurists, Advocates and Human Rights Practitioners

This activity is one of the cornerstones of the ICTR's outreach programme. Capacity building of the Rwandan legal practitioners included seminars aimed at strengthening the knowledge of judges, registrars, university professors and law students in areas such as online legal research and utilization of information management software. These seminars were aimed at increasing their knowledge in accessing electronic resources (online legal databases, free journals, Internet tools such as search engines) on various subjects such as ICTR jurisprudence, peace, reconciliation, prevention of genocide, democracy and development available from the ICTR website and from other institutions around the world. Another advanced training in legal records management for court registrars was postponed to 2006 due to unavailability of trainees. This year, such trainings will be also extended to the Rwandan Bar Association.

Rwandan judges, prosecutors, registrars and members of the Rwandan Bar Association have visited the Tribunal as part of continued efforts to strengthen the cooperation between the Rwandan judicial system and the Tribunal. During their visit, the Rwandan officials briefed ICTR officials on the restructuring within the Rwanda Judiciary and on other ongoing legal reforms. They also discussed issues pertaining to the ICTR's completion strategy with the President, the Prosecutor and the Registrar of the Tribunal.

In November 2005, a high level workshop involving representatives of the government of Rwanda and the Tribunal took place in Kigali. Workshop participants discussed how to develop an adequate process for transferring ICTR cases to Rwanda as an integral part of the Tribunal's Completion Strategy. They also reviewed strategies for soliciting funds for capacity building of the Rwandan justice sector.

In 2006, the ICTR planned an attachment programme of Rwandan judicial officials to the Office of the Prosecutor and the Registry in order for them to get first hand experience in international humanitarian law. Additionally, this attachment programme will help Rwandan legal practitioners to get experience necessary for handling cases that may be transferred to Rwanda as part of the Completion Strategy of the Tribunal. The success of the transfer of cases will be subject to the Rwandan judiciary's ability to uphold international justice standards. Recently, the outreach programme officer met with the training officers of the Rwandan Supreme Court and Office of the Prosecutor General to discuss how best to implement the capacity building programme. Further meetings between Rwanda and the Tribunal are planned to discuss the issue of capacity building.

IV. Relationship with Academic Institutions

ICTR has good cooperation with various Universities in Africa and elsewhere. A special programme has been set up to strengthen the capacity of Rwandan institutions of higher education.

IV.1 Special Fellowship Programme for Rwandan Law Students

The Tribunal has a particular cooperation with the National University of Rwanda. An annual programme of research awards for students has been instituted and is now in its sixth year. Each year, up to six law students from the National University of Rwanda spend eight weeks carrying out thesis research in the ICTR library and archives, attending trial proceedings and receiving briefings on various aspects of the Tribunal's work. Each student is assigned a mentor from among the Tribunal's legal staff who supervises and guides the research. This new model has engaged many law students to the extent that the number of research projects about international justice has increased. During the period under review, ICTR legal professionals lectured at the national university and this programme will be extended to other Rwandan universities. The Tribunal sponsors regular study tours of the ICTR by law professors and students from Rwandan private universities in order to provide them with information about international humanitarian law and ICTR jurisprudence. Subject to more financial support, it is expected that this programme will be extended to other Rwandan universities.

IV.2 Internship and Legal Researchers' Programmes

ICTR's Internship Programme is unlike any in the United Nations system, because its work assignments are of a specialized legal nature and interns assist in many of the core legal functions of the Tribunal, such as conducting research on intricate legal issues, summarizing witness testimonies, analyzing party submissions, drafting judgments and interlocutory motions, assisting in evidence collection and management, which in some cases involves travel to Rwanda and visits to genocide massacre sites.

Another Programme, the ICTR Legal Researchers' Programme is run side by side with the Internship Programme. The Legal Researchers Programme was conceived to redress the imbalance in that the numbers of interns from Africa were almost non-existent because of financial constraints. The Legal Researchers Programme is funded from the UN-ICTR Trust Fund and the beneficiaries are lawyers from Africa and other Third World countries. They perform the same functions as legal interns.

Since the Tribunal started its work in 1995, the UN-ICTR Internship Programme has grown from strength to strength. The main beneficiaries from these Programmes are OTP and Chambers. Since its inception, the programme has recorded a total of 636 interns and 84 Legal Researchers have so far completed their attachments at ICTR.

V. Media Programs

Media relations are a priority for the ICTR's outreach programme. Communicating its work to people outside the Tribunal and legal community is essential. During the period under review, the ICTR has developed a partnership with Radio Rwanda. Under this partnership, the Tribunal tried to fill the information gap regarding its work by facilitating Rwandan journalists from the Office Rwandais de l'Information to broadcast on a daily basis from Arusha. The Tribunal also conducted various seminars to inform Rwandan journalists about the content of the "media case" judgment and its implications for freedom of expression. It is also worthwhile mentioning that groups of up to six Rwandan journalists from broadcast and print media are regularly brought to the ICTR by UN flight from Kigali in order to report directly on important events such as the delivery of judgments.

The ICTR partnered with the Hirondelle Press Agency and Internews Press Agency in its effort to get Rwandan population informed about the Tribunal's work. Hirondelle Press Agency provides various audiences including Rwandans with news about daily ICTR's proceedings, while Internews Press Agency has been showing documentaries about the work of the Tribunal in many locations in Rwanda as part of a programme of information for Rwandan people. However, Internews discontinued the project in 2005. The Tribunal supports the efforts of Hirondelle, the only international press agency still operational at the ICTR, in securing resources to continue with its activities.

VI. Cooperation with Rwandan Civil Society Organizations.

The ICTR continues to actively cooperate and assist human rights bodies, sharing with them information and expertise related to international criminal law. Every year, at least six representatives from Rwandan civil society organizations visit the Tribunal. The aim of their visit is to get first hand information about the work of the Tribunal and to strengthen Rwandan civil society organizations' capacity in international humanitarian law and criminal jurisprudence.

PROSECUTION (OTP) INITIATIVES IN SUPPORT OF FACILITATING THE ACHIEVEMENT OF THE COMPLETION STRATEGY

I. Continuous Improvement of the Information and Evidence Management Capacity

Effective management of information is very important for the success of the Completion Strategy.

The OTP has a collection of over half a million pages of documents, thousands of hours of audio and video tapes and tens of thousands of transcripts of proceedings. These numbers continue to grow daily as trials progress. The task of discharging OTP evidentiary obligations and the imperative of sharing information in order to manage the cases well has become onerous and costly.

It is therefore a deliberate strategy within the OTP to continually improve information management practices and maximize the use of appropriate technology tools to help us expedite trials while still following fair and due process. Some recent innovations are:

Electronic Disclosure System

The Electronic Disclosure System (EDS) is a computer-based information management system containing all the non-confidential evidence and other information held by the OTP. This store of information is made available to the Defence on application. The system is available via the internet, thereby enabling Defence Counsel to access information from anywhere in the world 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

The most important benefit of this system is that it facilitates the compliance of the OTP with Rule 68, particularly paragraph (B) which states that “where possible, and with the agreement of the Defence, and without prejudice to paragraph (A), the Prosecutor shall make available to the Defence, in electronic form, collections of relevant material held by the Prosecutor, together with appropriate computer software with which the Defence can search such collections electronically”. Rule 68 is often cited as grounds for appeal and improving the OTP’s fulfillment of its disclosure obligations will expedite the completion of cases.

The OTP Intranet

It is imperative for the success of the OTP prosecutorial strategy that all trial teams share information with one another. With assistance from the European Commission for extrabudgetary funding, the OTP has been able to initiate the development of its intranet. The intranet enables the dissemination and sharing of key information among all OTP staff members (subject to security levels).

The key benefit of the intranet is that, through information sharing, all OTP staff members will be aware of developments in all OTP cases allowing the OTP to have a more consistent strategy. The Intranet will also give access to information sources which are centrally managed improving the quality and reliability of information. In so doing the work of the OTP can be carried out more effectively.

CaseMap

CaseMap is a litigation support software that allows a trial team to collect all information relevant to a case in one place for easier analysis and sharing with all members of the team and the OTP as a whole. Information can be structured in such a way that it clearly shows how well the case is progressing and where any weaknesses may be. This in turn allows trial teams to adjust their witness lists and presentation of evidence accordingly and produce their closing briefs more quickly and in so doing the Prosecution can present its case in a more efficient manner.

LiveNote

LiveNote is a transcript management software that greatly enhances access to the information in transcripts as well as allowing trial teams to annotate transcripts on a real-time basis. LiveNote gives trial teams the ability to search all the transcripts of an entire case at once thus reducing a task that previously could take several days to one that can be done in a matter of hours. LiveNote also allows trial teams to annotate sections of the transcript as it appears on their laptops real-time in court, which effectively means that analysis of transcripts can begin as soon as the evidence is given. Both functions greatly improve the speed at which information can be accessed which in turn leads to more efficient working practices by the trial teams.

II. Promoting Prosecutorial Best Practice: Imposing Quality Standards

A. Internal Best Practice

Another key strategy devised by the OTP to expedite trials is to implement quality standards across all key activities and set best practice (where there are none) or comply with best practice (where they exist).

OTP Best Practices are documented using ISO 9000 standards – an internationally acknowledged business process management standard.

The benefits of undertaking this standardization are:

Achieve consistency in process and outcome

The OTP operates in two major locations (Rwanda and Arusha, Tanzania) in four linked but culturally diverse sections/divisions. By imposing standards, greater consistency in the process and outcomes is achieved and in doing so reduce duplication of effort, errors and miscommunication.

Fix stress points in the processes

By reviewing the key process prior to documentation, stress points were identified and fixed which then lead to more effective streamlining and clearer harmonization of trial practices.

Consolidating and preserving institutional memory

There has and continues to be constant changes in OTP staff. Documentation of the key process will improve the organisation's institutional memory allowing it to continue to work at an optimal level despite staff changes.

Accountability: ICTR is accountable to the United Nations (and its members) for the work it has done on its behalf since 1994. The documentation of the OTP's work is a part of that accountability.

B. Sharing Best Practice with other institutions

While the ICTR is an unusual and unique organization with a very specific mandate, there are models of practice and procedure that will be relevant to other institutions such as the International Criminal Court, other current and future criminal tribunals and to the international community of prosecutors in general. The ICTR OTP has led the initiative in establishing International Prosecutors' Best Practice Programme which was unanimously adopted by other international prosecutors during the 1st International Prosecutors' Colloquium in Arusha in 2004 and continues to be developed to date.
