This is the first integrated survey of conflict resolution since the Cold War, offering an ideal introduction to the subject and an authoritative assessment of its current stage of development. What steps can be taken to prevent, manage and resolve major civil and international conflicts such as those in Bosnia, Rwanda, Palestine, Cambodia and Kosovo? What can we learn from conflicts where settlements have been reached, such as in South Africa, Northern Ireland and Mozambique? How can we respond effectively to contemporary conflicts?

Using original interpretations of conflict theories, case studies and examples of current practice, the authors analyse responses at different phases of conflict, from prevention and intervention in war zones to war endings and post-settlement peacebuilding.

Since the end of the Cold War, conflict prevention, conflict resolution, peace-keeping and peace-building have risen to the top of the international agenda. The second edition of this hugely popular text charts the development of the field from its pioneers to its contemporary exponents and offers an assessment of its achievements and the challenges it faces in the changed security environment of the early 21st century.

The book has been extensively revised and expanded. Existing material has been thoroughly updated and new chapters added on peace-building from below; reconciliation; responding to terror; gender issues; the ethics of intervention; dialogue, discourse and disagreement; culture and conflict resolution; and future directions for the field.

The first part offers an original and comprehensive survey of the theory and practice of conflict resolution in contemporary conflicts. It gives a clear picture of the state of the art in preventing, limiting and ending violent conflicts, post-war reconstruction, peace-building and reconciliation. Drawing on up-to-date statistics of conflict and contemporary case studies, the book explores the scope for conflict resolution and also the formidable obstacles it faces.

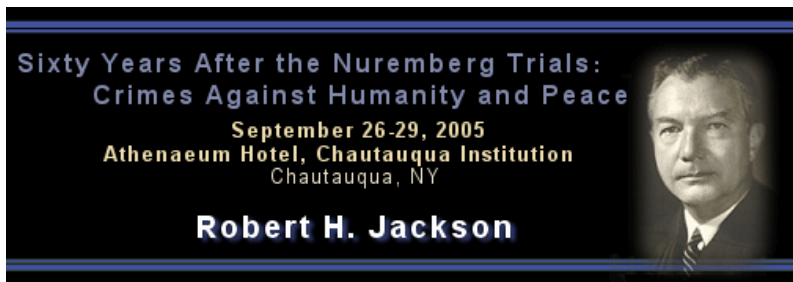

The second part enters into the controversies which have surrounded conflict resolution as it has become part of the mainstream. Addressing critiques of the field, the authors argue that a new form of cosmopolitan conflict resolution is emerging that is neither a marginal and visionary enterprise nor a tool of the powerful, but offers a hopeful means for human societies to transcend and celebrate their differences.

Contemporary Conflict Resolution 2nd edition is essential reading for all students of peace and security studies, conflict management, international politics and related disciplines.

CONFERENCE ALERTS

Conference Information

Sixty Years After the Nuremberg Trials: Crimes Against Humanity and Peace A Conference Commemorating the Living Legacy of Robert H. Jackson

To commemorate the living legacy of Justice Robert H. Jackson on the 60th anniversary of Nuremberg, Chautauqua Institution - together with the Robert H. Jackson Center and the State University of New York (SUNY) at Fredonia - will host a conference on September 26-29, 2005, entitled, Sixty Years After the Nuremberg Trials: Crimes Against Humanity and Peace. The Athenaeum Hotel will be the site of both the pre-conference activities starting at noon on September 26, and the full conference program.

Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson, who claimed nearby Jamestown, NY, as his home, gained international acclaim as the chief prosecutor at the Nuremberg Trials. Justice Jackson was appointed by President Truman as the U.S. Chief Council on May 2, 1945 on the eve of the German unconditional surrender.

Justice Jackson viewed his crowning achievement in public life to be his work in establishing the new standards of international law as a result of his work before the International Military Tribunal at Nuremberg. Speaking at the inauguration of the judges of the International Criminal Court at The Hague on March 11, 2003, UN Secretary-General Kofi Annan said of the Nuremberg and Tokyo tribunals, "Those tribunals established a principle of vital importance: that those who take part in gross violations of international humanitarian law cannot shelter behind the authority of the State in whose name they did so. They must take personal responsibility for their acts, and face the consequences."

The conference will be structured around concurrent panel sessions in the mornings and afternoons with an early evening plenary session. The current speakers include:

- John Q. Barrett, Robert H. Jackson scholar and Professor of Law at St. John's University;
- Robert Donihi, one of the last surviving prosecutors of the Tokyo trials;

Customary International Humanitarian Law: Challenges, Practices and Debates
September 29 to October 1, 2005

McGill University
Montreal, Quebec

McGill University and the Canadian Red Cross will host an international conference in Montreal to discuss the conclusions of the recent International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) study on customary international humanitarian law.

This unique study conducted by the ICRC in cooperation with hundreds of researchers, lawyers and experts worldwide was launched in the spring of 2005.

The study's objective is to promote compliance with international humanitarian law and as a result, to offer better protection to victims of war. The study will offer the world a common code of rules applicable to armed conflict that all parties to the conflict are obliged to follow.

This conference will bring together prominent professors from Canadian, American and European academic spheres, criminal law experts, and representatives from the Canadian government including the Department of National Defence, as well as representatives from non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and lawyers with experience in international tribunals.

Fragmentation: Diversification and Expansion of International Law
National Arts Centre, Ottawa
October 26-28, 2005 (Wednesday, Thursday and Friday)

Conference 2005 -- Preparations for this year's CCIL Conference are underway. It will address the theme of Fragmentation: Diversification and Expansion of International Law, and will take place in Ottawa between October 26 and 28, 2005. The conference promises to be an interesting forum for discussions of this timely topic. The proposed theme of fragmentation is meant to encompass the largest meaning of the term. Unlike the International Law Commission's work, which is becoming increasingly Co-chairs Rodney Neufeld and Anne La Forest are organizing a wide-ranging program. Topics will include a roundtable addressing the very current issue of United Nations reform. There will be nine panels addressing: Issues At the Cusp of Security and Human Rights; Canada's Sovereignty over the Arctic; The Overlapping Jurisdiction of Courts and Tribunals; Privatization and the Changing Role of the State; The Relationship between International and Domestic Law; Treaty Interpretation; Private International Law; Sustainable Development; and Critical Perspectives.

A diverse group of speakers from government, practice, academia, and the judiciary will examine topics from a range of perspectives such as international environmental law, trade and investment law, law of the sea, private international law, human rights and humanitarian law. As in past years, the schedule will also include a Student Job Fair and Forum. Further details will be forthcoming.
