NEW BOOKS

Hate Crime / Nathan Hall

ISBN : 1-84392-130-8

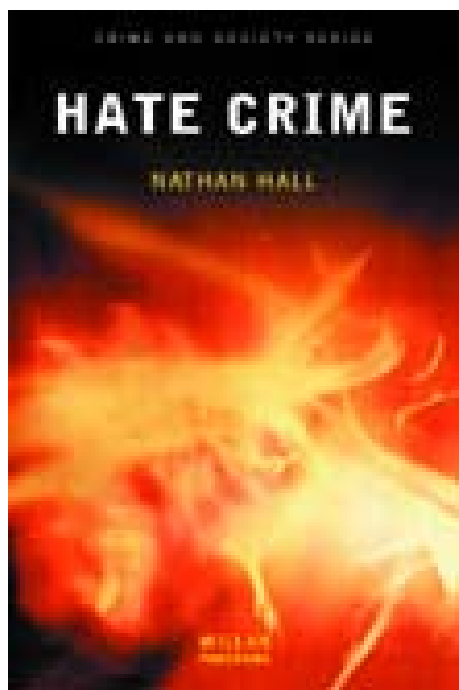

Call No: 06ME012

Crime and Society Series

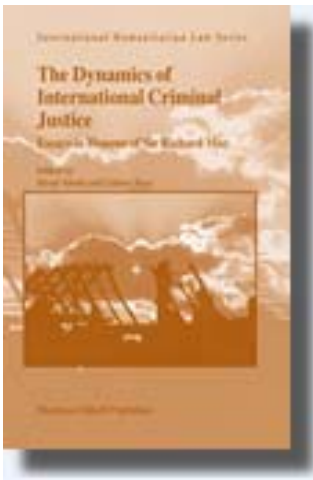

In recent years 'hate crime' has rapidly ascended political, policing and wider criminal justice agenda, and an increasing range of legislative measures have been implemented in the UK, the US and elsewhere to combat it. Yet research and writing on the subject has largely failed to keep up with these new realities, especially in the UK.

This text aims to fill this gap by examining various aspects of 'hate crime' in a predominantly British context, but situating this within the wider international criminological and policing literature on the subject. The book looks in detail at the way the police have responded to hate crime, and the policies and practice now being adopted to respond to it.

- text on increasingly high profile subject of hate crime
- focus on police and community service policies and measures to deal with the problem
- UK focus but set in context of international literature on hate crime

NEW BOOKS

The Dynamics of International Criminal Justice : Essays in Honour of Sir Richard May

Edited by Hiram Abtahi and Gideon Boas

International Humanitarian Law Series, 10

Call No: 05GB005

ISBN 90 04 14587 7

This book is dedicated to the memory of Sir Richard May, who passed away on 1 July 2004, and to the rich legacy he has left behind in the area of international criminal law. It contains in-depth analyses of a range of issues critical to the development and understanding of international criminal law, written by contributors who worked in some way with Sir Richard during his tenure at the ICTY, particularly during his last years as Presiding Judge of the Milošević Trial.

It contains a Foreword by the President of the ICTY, Theodor Meron, and substantive work in three main parts: one chapter concerning the development and understanding of human rights; five chapters addressing international criminal law issues in the context of ICTY proceedings; and two chapters focusing on substantive aspects of international criminal law. All the chapters analyse international criminal law as applied by the ICTY, as well as the ICC, ICTR and other international or hybrid criminal tribunals, and are all authored by persons in a position to give great insight into the subject matter discussed.

Hiram Abtahi is the first Legal Adviser to the Presidency of the ICC, where he also acted as Deputy Chef de Cabinet in the Immediate Office of the President. Prior to joining the ICC, he worked at the ICTY where he was extensively involved in the Milošević Trial, as the Associate Legal Officer to Trial Chamber III. Hiram Abtahi was also a legal consultant with the Geneva based International Commission of Jurists, on behalf of which he advised the ICTY Registry on issues such as the relocation of victims and witnesses, the conditions of detention of accused persons and the enforcement of sentences in third countries. He has lectured and published articles in English, French, and Persian on human rights, humanitarian law, and international criminal law. He is a member of the Société française pour le droit international and is on the Editorial Board of the International Criminal Law Review. He has a Diplôme d'études approfondies in international law and has been educated in Iran, France, Canada and England.

Gideon Boas is the Legal Officer for the Milošević trial before Trial Chamber III of the ICTY and Acting Senior Legal Officer of that Chamber. He has worked on trials and appeals at the ICTY in Chambers for seven years. For five years he was a member of the Secretariat of the ICTY Rules Committee, responsible for proposals for the amendment and creation of the ICTY Rules of Procedure and Evidence. He has worked in the area of international humanitarian law for the Red Cross, including participating in the ICRC customary international humanitarian law study. He has an LL.M. in international criminal law and is completing a PhD thesis on legal problems faced in trying former heads of State. He has published a number of articles on international criminal law; is senior editor (ICTY/Hague International Tribunals) of the Leiden Journal of International Law, and is co-editor with William Schabas of International Criminal Law Developments in the Case Law of the ICTY. He is a legal practitioner from Australia.

International Human Rights Law

Mark Freeman

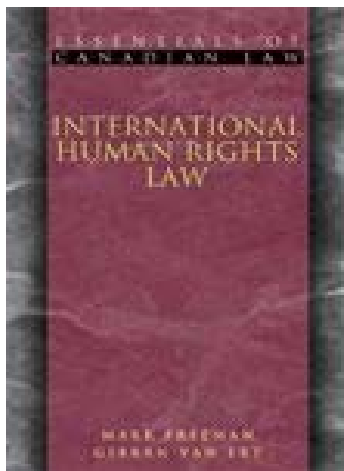

Toronto : Irwin Law, 2005.

Call No 06RA002

The last fifty years have witnessed the development of a global system of human rights promotion and protection. Canada has played a significant role in its growth and will likely continue to do so. Yet until now, there has not existed a comprehensive textbook on international human rights law written for Canadians. International Human Rights Law seeks to meet this need in a way that will encourage greater understanding of, and use of, international human rights law by lawyers, students and others.

Part One introduces the international law of human rights, including the related areas of international labour, refugee, humanitarian, and criminal law. The history and sources of international human rights are described and the leading treaties discussed.

Part Two addresses the reception of international human rights norms in Canadian domestic law. After introducing Canadian reception law and the leading Canadian human rights laws, this part embarks on an ambitious survey of the means by which the Charter and other laws implement--or fail to implement--Canadian human rights obligations.

Part Three is devoted to the promotion and protection of human rights in Canadian, international, and (to a lesser extent) foreign law. This part emphasizes remedial measures available to victims of human rights abuses, whether suffered in Canada or abroad.

Finally, the conclusion considers contemporary trends and issues in human rights law, including terrorism, humanitarian intervention, transitional justice, and domestic reception.

The book also includes a foreword by the UN Human Rights Commissioner, the Hon. Louise Arbour, and useful appendices on Canadian human rights treaty obligations.

Quotes

"This book deserves a very warm reception. It is timely and relevant, appearing as international human rights law itself is promoting and shaping the globalisation of a culture of rights. As the first comprehensive Canadian international human rights law text, this volume provides a particularly illuminating Canadian perspective and approach to the subject, including a very useful chapter on our domestic reception of international human rights law. In filling this lacuna in the literature, I expect this work to reduce the reliance previously placed by Canadian students and instructors on materials developed with American and British audiences in mind. As if this were not enough, compounding the value of the text's unique Canadian perspective, timeliness and relevance, is the obvious care and exhaustiveness with which it has been researched and the accessible style in which it is written."

Hon. Louise Arbour, United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights, from the Foreword.

The Nuremberg War Crimes Trial and Its Policy Consequences Today Nuremberg: Precedent? Ethical Standard? Or Historical Artifact?

October 6 - October 7, 2006
Bowling Green, OH, USA

An ASIL Centennial Regional Meeting. The Graduate Program in Policy History of Bowling Green State University, the University of Toledo College of Law and the Robert H. Jackson Center present a two-day interdisciplinary conference with the aim of facilitating the study of historical, political, legal and military implications of the Nuremberg War Crimes Trial across the past six decades. Robert H. Jackson, Associate Supreme Court Justice and United States Chief of Counsel for the Nuremberg War Crimes Trial, asserted we "must never forget that the record on which we judge these defendants today is the record on which history will judge us tomorrow." Participants will explore that history through an invitation for paper and panel proposals on topics that deal with these implications within the disciplines of history, law, military science, international relations and political science.
