An Introduction to International Criminal Law and Procedure

CRYER, Robert
FRIMAN, Hakan ...[et al.]

Cambridge University Press, 2007

Call No 07EA002

International criminal law has developed considerably in the last decade and a half, resulting in a complex and re-invigorated discipline. This has impacted directly on the popularity of the study of the subject, particularly on postgraduate law degrees. This textbook serves these courses by providing an introduction to the principles of international criminal law and processes. Written by four international lawyers with experience of teaching international criminal law, it is accessible yet sophisticated in its approach. It covers substantive international criminal law, the institutions designed to enforce it and their procedures, and the international law applicable to domestic prosecutions of international crimes. It will be essential reading for students and teachers of international criminal law. In addition, practitioners and researchers in the field (and in related fields such as criminal law), students of international law and international relations will find this introduction invaluable.

- Comprehensive coverage of international criminal law, substantive, institutional and procedural
- Written by a team of experts with extensive practical and academic experience
- Accessible to the novice while setting out sophisticated and stimulating arguments to engage the student.

Also includes a text-supported dedicated companion website. To view it - click here.

CONFERENCE ALERTS

Justice Sector Reform: Applying Human Rights Based Approaches

June 16-20, 2008, 9:00 a.m.-6:00 p.m.
National University of Ireland, Maynooth, Ireland

This IHRN training programme will enhance skills of justice sector professionals in applying Human Rights Based Approaches to Justice Sector Reform. It will facilitate the development of knowledge and skills regarding:

- The legal principles, policies and practice underpinning human rights based approaches to justice sector reform inter-linkages between justice sector actors (law enforcement, judicial, corrections, etc)
- relationship between the justice sector and related terms (‘security sector’ ‘rule of law’ ‘good governance’)
- HRBA needs assessment, programme design, implementation, as well as mentoring, monitoring & evaluation
- Programming tools and checklists (including Human Rights Based benchmarks and indicators of change)
- Case studies from national contexts as well as international field missions (including conflict and post-conflict)
- Teamwork, advocacy and strategic partnerships.

Method

The programme uses a variety of facilitation techniques including presentations by guest specialists, plenary discussions, small group work and role-plays, case studies, etc. The programme is highly participatory and emphasises cross-learning among participants and practical exercises to apply what they have learned throughout. While contributing their own experience, participants will also be allocated materials for a case study to prepare for discussion. Advance reading will cover the international legal framework for justice sector reform (both civil and criminal) as well as human rights based approaches.

Participants

Reflecting the multi-disciplinary nature of human rights based justice sector reform, the training programme is designed for individuals with relevant experience in developing or industrialised countries, as well as international field missions: government officials; state, non-state and international regulatory bodies (e.g prison/police inspectors; national human rights institutions; Bar Councils etc); international civil servants (UN agencies, EC, OSCE, AU, etc); as well as policy advisors, project managers and consultants.
